Fattening Hogs. A correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph has the following to say in reference to the best method of fattening hogs: "I must now hasten to give some of my own experience with the hogs. I used to keep them in my younger days to furnish meat for my meal alone, and some think for some days previous to slaughtering time they should be fed with dry corn and pure cold water, that it makes their meat tened as above directed, their meat will vegetables in the summer season, a substitute a piece of ripe stall-fed a pickle made of salt and brown sugar, with just a very little nip of saltpetre to make the meat tender.

Evening Exercise for Yarded Fowls.

During the summer, when fowls must be shut up on account of their scattering propensities, much of the ill effects of their imprisonment may be avoided if they are let out for a short period at evening.

While out they may be watched, al-though there is but little danger of their going into the garden, and they will find enough on the grass plots to keep them busy.

Indeed, it is surprising how beneficial this time of exercise is. The fowls, knowing that they are to have a chance to get out, are much more quiet during the day, and if regularity in letting them out and shutting them up be observed, they will return to their roots without trouble.

It is possible, also, that an hour at evening is nearly as good as a whole day, so far as the health of the flock is concerned; for if there is any special article of diet needed, they will hunt all the more diligently. It is for this reason that they will prefer the grass to the plowed land.

By such an arrangement as this, large flocks can be kept in good condition, although shut up through the year.

How to Use a Spade. The man who can handle a spade properly does not find it very hard or laborious work. He first lets the spade fall of its own weight down to the spot taking care that the breadth of the surface ground is not more than four inches; then he draws back the spade a little, which takes off much of the friction of the descending blade. One good thrust of the spade with the foot then sends the blade down its full depth. A backward pressure makes a lever of the handle and heel of the spade, and a spadeful upside down just where it is wanted. There is no raking or "sputtering" needed to make the ground A slight tap with the corner of level. the spade makes the work as regular ment.

Preparing Rennets.

The best way for preparing rennets is to steep in whey. The whey should be raised to the boiling heat, when the albuminous matter will rise, and may be one of the carth formed itself, more than 2,000, buminous matter will rise, and may be skimmed off. Whey, when petrified, will in a short time develop acidity; and then is regarded as altogether the best liquid for steeping rennet that has yet been discovered. The whey should not be allowed to get sour and decomposed before heating and skimming, but should be taken sweet from the curds, and purified as above described. Salt may be added to the whey when ready for the rennets, and these should be rubbed out and set to steep in the same manner as when water is used for

The Age of the Earth. The new method of ascertaining the age of the earth, which is a present topic in German scientific circles, at- their values were unsettled and uncertempts to determine approximately the tain. time at which the flery liquid earthball for the first time covered itself with a crust. This is done by means of the difference of the longest and the shorest diameter of the earth. According to the calculations of Newton and Huygens this would be in 1578, if the rotaion of the earth had always been completed in twenty-four hours, while, in fact, it amounts to 1298, which is equivalent to a rotation time of seventeen hours and sixteen minutes, which must have once been the time of the earth's rotation. It is, however, probable, for reasons which need not be gone into, that at the time the earth was covering itself with a firm crust the time of rotation was also a mean between the original and the present time. That a retardation of the rotation of time has taken and is still taking place is now as good as proved, although formerly it was strongly doubted. Of all heavenly bodies it is the moon whom astronomers know best, and have most exactly calcuwhere the spadeful is to be taken up, lated from her movements. Now, the co-efficients of the secular acceleration of the moon's course, as found on the one hand from the oldest observations of eclipses, on the other from the theory, are at variance, and there are differences which ought not to exist in the calculations of so well observed a body. Agreement can only be obtained when it is supposed that during the dextrous turn of the wrist sends the 1,000 years which have passed since the Greeks first calculated the eclipses, the rotation of the earth has been retarded 0.01197 seconds. There exists no difficulty about the causes of this retardation, which is perfectly well explained and plane as if laid off with an instru- by the tides. A Good Lesson.

If your boys revolt from study, give them an opportunity to test the pleasure of manual labor, and then let them follow the occupation they prefer. In nine cases out of ten, books will carry the day. It was opposing his wishes, and he was quick in his answer. 'Well, John, if Latin grammar does not suit, you may try ditching, perhaps that will. My meadow needs a ditch, and you may put Latin by and try that.' This seemed a delightful change, and to the measlow I went. The Panic Passing Away. Some of the Causes Which Produced It. and the Duties That Will Follow It. The best simile we can find to de scribe the week of panie in Wall street, says a New York paper, is that of a simple conflagration. Indeed, it would be almost as easy to make a map of the included all that there was of real financial danger or actual financial disaster. A few daring and speculative brokers, and fewer unsound banks and for which they had provided the combustibles, but beyond these no business interest suffered, and trade generally was unaffected. Even the failure of Henry Clews & Co., and Howes & Macy, added little to the excitement, and it seemed apparent on every hand that the panic was slowly dying away. In the end it will scarcely be regarded as a disaster—certainly not a national disaster. The great lesson of the panie is, that while it caused fear and alarm almost everywhere, it was in reality confined to those who created it, and it is apparent at last that Wall street may be convulsed to its very foundations without involving anything beyond it. Hereafter the bulls and bears of the street may tear each other to pieces, and they will only be regarded by solid business men as so many marionettes playing their puppet parts for the amusement of people who delight in by cleverly managed machinery. The panic came almost without forewarning, but it was the result of causes long in active operation. The war had left us a legacy of shams and false growths. Though it is more than eight years since, we were not yet free from the fatal poison of war speculations and the loose notions of business and business integrity with which the people were innoculated. And other things grew out of the war equally hurtful cases of cholera having occurred in a with this constitutional disease. It gave town some forty-five miles to the westus an inflated currency, which enticed men into speculations, certain at some time to create a stringency for them. Overtrading, consequent upon the war spirit of speculation, depleted the gether with the quantities of unripe country of its gold and made a return fruit which the Japanese seem to deto specie payments impolitic, if not impossible. common species of fraud and rendered shares comparatively worthless, while

The reckless management of trust companies and savings banks was in keeping with the daring spirit of speculation which has just caused the bankers in Wall street who sowed the wind to reap the whirlwind. The constant recurrence of defalcations by men holding the most sacred fiduciary relations to the people and the government, and the deadening moral tone among classes of society, tended to bring about the crash which well nigh involved the country in ruin. It is a remarkable circumstance that financial houses antedating the war have fallen because of the evils generated by the war. They caught the infection, and, though they seemed to fatten on the poison, they were swept away by the plague in the end. The results have een fearful, but they bring with them a promise of purer health and sweeter strength in the future.

It would be easy to prophesy that so many concentric circles of evil, all tending to destruction, would, sooner or later, bring terrible punishment; but it was not so easy to foresee that among so much of the evil there should be even more of good. The commercial and industrial interests of the country are sound and secure. The national credit is firm and unshaken. Gold is as stable as in ordinary times. All these are healthful signs-especially healthful when Wall street is convulsed with out convulsing anything beyond it. It was almost a tradition that when the ples on the surface. No inflation of the currency was needed beyond the wants of a few speculators. The United States Treasury gave them greenbacks for bonds and refused them everything

The great business interests which centre in the metropolis see that they are independent of the men who toss stocks up and down, and in the future fancy shares bought and sold upon a margin will have little more influence upon the mardonna at the opera.

Novel Duck Hunting-

An ingenious Minnesota youth is to be credited with a novelty in the way of duck hunting. He lives at a beautiful spot known as Rice Lake from the wild rice growing on its margin as thick as wheat in a field. Ducks love this rice, and when they have partaken of a sufficient quantity their flesh becomes of a nature to tempt the palate of an anchorite. But the Rice Lake ducks, either stomach. from experience or an instinct which may be said to be wisdom intensified. do not like human company, and when they see a hunter approaching, generally hasten out of gun-shot range. Dick, the youth before alluded to, was particularly fond of ducks, and looked with contempt upon the futile efforts of his sire to provide the table with this delicacy. He determined to have some ducks for dinner, if it took all the morning to accomplish the task. Proceeding to the corn-field, he selected a large pumpkin, cut a hole in one end, removed its internal arrangements, carself of his clothes, placed the pumpkin over his head, and waded in among the and imagining the vegetable to be free from guile, encouraged the others to follow. THE DISEASE AT SINGAPORE,

The Hiogo, Japan, News says: Now that the cholera in a dangerous form has reached Singapore, and the seeds of it may chance to be brought Northward by any vessel trading on the China coast, we think it would not be amiss if the government were to issue some simple directions to all local authorities as to the steps which should be taken in case of any outbreak occurring. Though we have reason to doubt the correctness of the rumors which have been in circulation as to some ward of this, there can be no doubt that the reckless way in which filth is allowed to collect and fester in the sun in the drains of the native towns, tolight to munch, have between them Watered stocks became a many deaths to answer for, and with such surroundings an outbreak of an epidemic need cause no surprise.

Gents-I make the following statement from a perfect conviction and knowledge of the benefits of Aller's Luxe Baream in curing the most deepseated Pulmenary Consumption: I have witnessed its effects on the young and the old, and I can truly say that it is by far the best expectorant remedy with which I am acquainted. For Coughs, and all the early stages of Lung Complaints, I believe it to be a certain care, and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption. It causes the phiegm and matter to raise without irritating those delicate organs (the Lungs), and without producing constipation of the bowels. It also gives strength to the system, stops the night-sweats, and changes all the morbid secretions to a healthy state.

The Death of Captain Hall.

A telegram from London says: "Morton, who personally attended Captain Hall to the moment of his death, makes the statement that Hall returned in perfect health from the journey which preceded his final illness. He was a short time in his cabin, where he took some coffee, and immediately afterward became sick and vomited. Hall said they were poisoning him. Morton evidently believes the same thing. He also suspects the subsequent medical treatment. He has, however, a violent feeling against the doctor, which may color his judgment."

WISTAR'S BALSAM for Bronchitis, - Com.

Natural Decay --- Protect the System. The human-body is a machine, and therefore can. not endure forever; but, like a watch or a sewing machine, it will last much longer if properly regu-lated and duly repaired, than if no pains were taken to keep it in order. The great object of every one who desires a long and healthy life should be to put his body in a condition to resist the lifethreatening influences by which we are all more or less surrounded; and no invigorant or corrective at present known so effectively answers this purpose as the vitalizing elixir which, under the unpretending name of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has been for more than twenty years the standard tonic of America. In crowded cities, where the atmosphere is contaminated with the effluvia inseparable frem large populations; in marshy regions, where the soggy soil reeks with miasma; on the prairies and in the forests, where every fall the air is tainted with exhalations from rotting weeds and grasses, or decomposing leaves-in short, in every locality where malaria exists, this powerful vegetable antidote is urgently needed. Fever and ague, bilious fevers, dysentery, conjestion of the liver, jaundice, rheumatism, and all diseases which are generated by infected air, impure water, or sudden changes of temperatures may be averted by strengthening the system in advance with Hostetter's Bitters. Autumn is always a season of peril, especially to weak, susceptways a season of peril, especially to weak, susceptible organizations. Even the more vigorous are apt to be in some measure depressed by the humid atmosphere, loaded with deleterious gases produced by vegetable decay. The fall is a period of the year when the renovation and regulation of the living machine is peculiarly important, and the Bitters should therefore be taken daily at this critical season.

Or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules. THE "LITTLE GIANT" CATHARTIC, or Multum in Parvo Physic.

The novelty of modern Medical, Chemical and Pharmaceutical Science. No use of any lower taking the large, repulsive and nanscons pills, composed of cheap, crude, and bulky ingredients, when we can, by a careful application of chemical science, extract all the catherite and other medicinal properties from the most valuable roots and herbs, and concentrate them into ble roots and herbs, and concentrate them into a minute Granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, that can be readily swallowed by those of the most sensative stomachs and fastidious tastes. Each little Purgative Fellet represents, in a most concentrated form, as much cathartic power as is embodied in any of the large pills found for sale in the drug shops. From their wonderful cathartic nower, in proportion to large pills found for sale in the drug shops. From their wonderful cathartic power, in proportion to their size, people who have not tried them are apt to suppose that they are harsh or drastic in effect, but such is not at all the case, the different active medicinal principles of which they are composed being so harmonized and modified, one by the others, as to produce a most scarching and thorough, yet gently and kindly operating cathartic.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vin egar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.
